ON THE COVER

It's no secret that the Clark Fork River and Missoula are deeply intertwined. We play in it, commute over it, relax by it — you get the idea, and this year's cover image perfectly captures a summer night in Missoula's living room. Whether you're spending an evening on the water while a local guide leads you downstream, walking along the river's edge in the shadow of Mount Sentinel or simply enjoying a day exploring our downtown, our lives are anchored by the Clark Fork. No matter the season, Missoulians are in constant flow. The river helps remind us that there's so much to enjoy if we move with the current.

THERE'S THIS PLACE

There's this place where solitude, wilderness and adventure are only minutes from gourmet restaurants, funky local shops and a killer music scene. It's a place encircled by high mountain peaks and soft rolling hills, where trails begin at your doorstep.

Missoula named Montana's most underrated hidden gem city.
MSN, 2024

Missoula, Montana, lies at the convergence of three rivers and seven wilderness areas. Getting outside is a way of life here; friendly folks smile and say hello, and social calendars are filled with outdoor concerts and festivals, art openings, theater performances and meetups for good food and good company. It's a place where commutes are measured in minutes, businesses thrive and even those working nine-to-five jobs know the value of a good lunchtime hike.

Here, we go with the flow. On any given day you'll see anglers gracefully casting a line in the Clark Fork River. Downstream, kayakers and river surfers perform athletic feats atop Brennan's Wave. Tubing becomes an alternative form of transportation in the summer as people ride the river right through town. Off the water, they use the trail system that crisscrosses the city, or they cycle the country's friendliest streets.

Missoula is a hub for cultural activities, drawing artists, musicians and performers from across the globe. Music venues here regularly appear on lists of best places to listen to live tunes, and you can find a show almost any night of the week. The first Friday of each month is dedicated to an evening of celebrating local art with downtown galleries and shops warmly welcoming in patrons. The University of Montana draws renowned speakers and students from far and wide and gives Missoula that diverse and lively college-town feel.

Missoulians' love of good beer is rivaled only by their appreciation for good coffee. Dozens of coffee shops supply necessary caffeine, and Missoula's breweries pour award-winning beers. Local distilleries craft gin, whiskey and vodka from local fruits and grains, and cideries here have perfected the art of hard cider. You won't find a friendlier, more laid-back place, whether you're traveling solo, with the family or with your furry, canine friend. Most local events are kid-friendly, and dogs can join the fun on-leash in most parks and public outdoor spaces or play off-leash in areas dedicated to wandering free.

Open space defines Missoula. Wilderness trails begin just minutes from downtown, making it easy to get a quick ride or hike in before it's time to clock-in for the day. People seek solitude outside, but they also forge a tight community, coming together while shopping for local produce at farmers markets and attending brewfests, which seem to occur every other weekend in the summer.

Weather is a state of mind in Missoula, and outdoor recreation is alive and well in all four seasons. When winter shows up, folks trade in their hiking boots, fly rods and mountain bikes for skis, snowboards and fat bikes. Wildflowers bloom like crazy in the springtime, spattering the hillsides with vibrant color. In the summer, the sun doesn't set until well after 10 p.m. As the leaves turn and the air gets crisp, simple hikes become hunts to spot larches that have changed from green to gold. There's always a reason—and a season—to be outside.

Adventure meets variety in Missoula. It's a place of urban amenities in a small town setting—where you can paddle or hike all day and take in a concert or theater performance in the evening. It's a place of mountains and rivers; arts and culture; equality and inclusion; and families, explorers, scholars, and educators from all over the world. It's a place where all are welcome. And it's a place you just have to experience for yourself.

INDIGENOUS LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

We gratefully acknowledge and recognize the Indigenous peoples who are the original stewards of the land we now live, work and recreate on. We are in the aboriginal territories of the Séliš (Bitterroot Salish), Qlispé (Upper Pend d'Orielle/Kalispel) and Ksanka (Kootenai) people, and we honor the path they have always shown us in caring for this place for the generations to come. As we experience and enjoy Missoula and the surrounding region, we acknowledge that every aspect of the land we treasure so deeply has an Indigenous name and story.

BEARTRACKS BRIDGE. KASSIDY MALCOLM

BEARTRACKS BRIDGE: RENAMING OF THE HIGGINS AVENUE BRIDGE

Higgins Avenue Bridge has been renamed Beartracks Bridge (Sxʷúytis Smxe) in honor of the Séliš (Bitterroot Salish) who inhabited this land for thousands of years before the appearance of colonizers. The name "Beartracks" is a tribute to a prominent Salish family (known as the Vanderbergs today) who were highly respected within their community. The Bear Tracks, like so many other Salish people at the time, were forced out of the Bitterroot Valley and escorted north to the Flathead Reservation by U.S. troops. This history is of direct relevance to the bridge itself—the area being a prominent site in a horrific event now known as the Trail of Tears. The namesake of the bridge serves as a reminder to Missoula's current inhabitants to become shepherds of the place they call home. Visitors can learn more about the Bear Tracks family at the interpretive signs located on the south end of the bridge.

MISSOULA BY THE SEASON Montana's year-round playground.

There's no wrong time to visit Missoula—that's part of the beauty. Every season offers a unique adventure. That's why folks come back again and again. DESTINATIONMISSOULA.ORG/FOUR-SEASONS

WINTER

MONTANA DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

This little mountain town wears a lot of hats and “ski destination” is one of its most fitting. A downhill and cross-country mecca, Missoula makes the perfect basecamp for the region's five ski areas, in-town trails and bounty of backcountry terrain. Snow lovers, ski bums, sledders, shredders, ice climbers and winter wonderland wanderers unite in a community that craves the cold stuff and knows how to warm up at the end of a long day in deep powder.

(Dec. – Feb.)

SEASONAL FAVORITE: DOWNHILL SKIING

With a whole handful of downhill ski areas to choose from—all boasting mixed and exciting terrain, epic snowfall levels, affordable lift tickets and no lift lines—it's no wonder Missoulians welcome winter with open arms.

SPRING

HOLLY GANNETT

The season of new growth, rushing rivers, thawing ground and emerging wildlife has eager explorers ready to get off the slopes and onto sparkling waters and lush trails. It's time to lace up your hiking boots, pump up your bike tires, dust off your golf clubs and head out into the wildflowers and wide-open green spaces as they emerge from the blanket of winter.

(March – May)

High	57.4°F
Low	32.9°F

SEASONAL FAVORITE: GOLFING

Missoula's surprisingly long golf season can start as early as March. With almost a dozen golf clubs and courses in the area, it's pretty easy to tee up during Montana's invigorating spring renewal.

SUMMER

TAYLAR ROBBINS

Daylight graces Missoula's summers by hanging around very late into the evening. Warm weather and alpine sunshine mean play by day and by night. It's the time to be on the water, in the water or by the water, whether with a rod, in a boat or on a board. It's the time to meet up with friends at the farmers market or on a downtown patio for brews and adventure brags. See a live concert in an amphitheater on the banks of the famed Blackfoot River. Or, simply, head out on your own two feet and trek as many trails as you can.

(June – Aug.)

High	80.4°F

SEASONAL FAVORITE: TUBING

It's not uncommon to spot a car with multiple inner tubes tied to the top of it heading up the road to one of many Clark Fork River boat launches and put ins, where tubers joyfully float right down the river into downtown Missoula.

FALL

HOLLY GANNETT

Locals love autumn in Missoula because hunting season is on and ski season is right around the corner. Plus, the unreal fall colors are good for the soul. As the temps cool down, the wildlife viewing outside of town gets good, the rivers offer new fishing opportunities, cold-brew coffees are traded in for warm, seasonal lattes and sweater weather makes for an even tighter-knit community. Plus, it's Griz football season, and community pride runs very, very deep.

(Sept. – Nov.)

SEASONAL FAVORITE: FOOTBALL

DESTINATION STEWARDSHIP

LET'S TAKE CARE OF This Place

📍 RIVERFRONT WALKING TRAIL. TAYLAR ROBBINS

Working together to protect what makes Missoula special.

If you talk to anyone who's spent time in Missoula, they'll tell you that there's just something about this place. It's this feeling that keeps visitors coming back, and Missoulians calling this place home for decades. The breathtaking scenery throughout the valley inspires people from all walks of life, whether it's beckoning you to enjoy a day exploring, influencing your art or simply inviting you to linger for just a second longer and appreciate the view.

That feeling—that desire to linger here is something worth protecting. And it takes all of us to do just that.

The Missoula Destination Stewardship Plan is a 10-year strategic roadmap that includes a vision, goals, and strategic initiatives. It is more than an idea—it is the result of a deep love and respect for this place by residents, businesses, the University of Montana, nonprofits, and visitors who strive to keep Missoula vibrant, to inspire lasting and positive change, and to nurture Missoula as a sustainable haven in our ever-changing world.

Missoula's Destination Stewardship Plan is about more than sustainable tourism—it's about taking care of the place we call home (or home-away-from-home) and protecting it for generations to come. We're all in this together, in the best possible way. Taking care of Missoula means supporting our six best practices of stewardship. These best practices align with actionable steps to achieve the five strategic goals of Missoula's Destination Stewardship plan: elevate and enhance stewardship, support placemaking enhancements, improve transportation and connectivity, strengthen community alignment, and advance destination development. Everyone has a role to play in preserving and bettering this place.

📍 BLUE MOUNTAIN. HOLLY GANNETT

Learn more about Missoula's Destination Stewardship plan—including our long-term goals and ways to get involved here:

BEST PRACTICES

Here's what you can do to help.

Missoula, Montana, is more than a place—it's a way of life. With wilderness to explore, stories rooted in the landscape, and a culture of cool, it's no wonder that so many people fall in love with this place. In order to safeguard the "soul" in Missoula, we all must do our part to keep it vibrant, welcoming and weird for this and future generations. Whether you're here for a weekend or a lifetime, you have a role to play. Let's take care of this place—together.

LET'S PROTECT OUR FLOW

Keep our rivers clean, safe and sacred.

Let's take care of this place by enjoying our rivers with intentionality and care—pack it in, pack it out and stick to designated access points. Whether you're floating, fishing, surfing or SUP-ing, show respect by leaving our waters better than you found them.

LET'S LEAD WITH KINDNESS

Missoula is good to us. Let's be good back.

Let's take care of this place by being good to one another—on the trail, on the roads, at the market or in line for a pint. Whether you've spent your lifetime here or are just passing through, smile, say hello, give back and remember that our stories are all connected.

LET'S OWN OUR FOOTPRINT

Every step leaves a mark. Make yours a good one.

Let's take care of this place by staying on trails, cleaning up after our pets, giving wildlife space, following all posted regulations and taking nothing but memories with you. On the roads and on the trail, to minimize your trace is to honor this place. The lands around Missoula are shared treasure—do your part so they stay welcoming and pristine for generations to come.

LET'S LEARN THE WHOLE STORY

The land remembers, and the story is still being written.

Let's take care of this place by learning its full story—the histories, heritage and continued legacy of the Séliš (Salish), Ksanka (Kootenai) and Qlispé (Upper Pend d' Oreille/Kalispel) people are the foundation of this place, and their voices remain central to Missoula today. Understand that this is a sacred place and be respectful and curious—not only about the legacies of the past, but about the people and the stories that continue to shape Montana's present and future.

LET'S CHOOSE LOCAL

People are the soul of this place. Let's lift them up.

Let's take care of this place by supporting the makers, creators and local business owners that call Missoula home. Actions speak louder than words, so let your dollars do the talking—shop small, eat local and show your appreciation. Supporting local bolsters the quirk and spirit that makes Missoula, well, Missoula.

LET'S EMBRACE EVERYONE

We are all connected.

Let's take care of this place by creating a community where everyone feels welcome. From accessible trails and inclusive events to creating a culture that honors all voices and identities, there is room for all walks, rolls and rides in Missoula.

ATTRACTIONS FOR ALL

Missoula is so much more than its mountains.

While beauty surrounds this city, there's so much beauty to be found within the community itself. Missoula's full of inspiration both indoors and out, from the renowned Missoula Art Museum to an exquisitely hand carved (and surprisingly fast!) carousel ride. Spin the dial from past to present at the Montana Natural History Center. Splash around in indoor and outdoor water parks. Discover the wonders of the all-abilities Dragon Hollow playground. Stroll through art galleries, shops and boutiques. Trace Missoula's early days on a self-guided riverfront walking tour. There's a year-round schedule of festivals and events taking place "under the tent" in a newly renovated Caras Park, and they all draw a crowd. Missoula's a place where adventure, delight and gratitude have seeped their way into the city's very foundation – where every turn holds the promise of something new.

ACCESSIBILITY IS IN OUR NATURE

Caras Park is the beating heart of downtown Missoula. It's so much more than an event venue, it's a gathering place; a space where people are able to come together. Sitting on the banks of the Clark Fork River, the park hosts all kinds of events year-round, from cultural events and concerts like the International Choral Festival, to food and drink festivals that the whole city looks forward to each year, like Germanfest and Garden City Brewfest. There's also weekly mainstays when the weather is warm, with Downtown ToNight, Out to Lunch and the Clark Fork River Market drawing big crowds throughout the summer. Caras Park has always been accessible for visitors and residents alike – this isn't new. Now, an addition to the park has made the river more accessible than ever before.

In 2025, the park completed and unveiled the Caras Park River Access Project—a project allowing even more people to gather and enjoy all the park has to offer.

Construction began in 2024 on the existing infrastructure, with the hopes of transforming the observation deck overlooking Brennan's Wave. The project culminated in two ADA-accessible ramps to take patrons right up to the water's edge, as well as terraced seating to give spectators watching the surfers and kayakers a front row seat to the action. The access also connects to the Riverfront Trail, a paved 7-mile trail connecting some of downtown Missoula's hot spots.

This new addition will help to make the beautiful Clark Fork—the city's cornerstone—accessible to individuals of all abilities for years to come.

Live Like a Local

This is a community that thrives on its ‘happenings.’ With weekly markets, a Brewfest for every season and enough events to fill your calendar, there is no shortage of ways to experience this city like a local. Whether you’re visiting for a week or have lived here for a lifetime, there’s always something exciting happening that reminds us why we’re here in the first place.

EXPLORE THE WILDERNESS

Only minutes from town, Pattee Canyon, Blue Mountain and Rattlesnake recreation areas offer mountain biking, hiking and fresh alpine air—especially lovely in winter when Montana transforms into a wonderland of snow. Designated wilderness areas just minutes from downtown make for an easy escape from the hustle and bustle. Remember to practice responsible recreation while enjoying the outdoors: know before you go, leave no trace, go slow and stay on the trails and say hello.

LISTEN TO THE MUSIC

Missoula’s live music scene is quickly topping the charts as one of the best in the West. Local musicians and national acts sell out venues big and small all year long.

GO OUT TO LUNCH OR DINE DOWNTOWN TONIGHT

Locals gather for food truck fare and live music at Missoula’s signature summer events—Out To Lunch on Wednesdays and Downtown ToNight on Thursdays. Both are free at Caras Park from June through August. Added bonus: Get a taste of the town’s creativity at the Missoula Makers Market, where local artists sell their handmade art and products. It runs alongside Downtown ToNight.

GET ON THE BEATEN PATH

The city’s extraordinary pathway system travels throughout Missoula and also connects to the Kim Williams Nature Trail. You can even bike 50 miles from Missoula to Hamilton on the Bitterroot Trail. During the winter, these scenic routes are fat bike, snowshoe and cross-country ski friendly.

DRINK LOCAL

Missoula takes its beer seriously. There’s so many local breweries around here that we’ve lost count, and every last one of them is worth a visit. Serving up hometown cult-classics and award-winning brews, even the biggest beer nerds will find something they love. Distilleries, wineries, and cideries? We’ve got those too.

SHOP SATURDAY MARKETS

Stock up on the produce, fresh flowers, baked goods and the sounds of local street musicians at the Missoula Farmers’ Market. Nearby, find locally crafted Made in Montana gifts and wares at the Missoula People’s Market. Make your way to the Clark Fork River Market on Pattee Street May-October for fresh produce, pastries, breads, homemade jams and locally sourced meats and cheeses. This year, the River Market will stay open from November-April, offering goods from your favorite vendors each Saturday throughout the winter at The Badlander. Missoula Valley Winter Market is a longtime community staple, and it’s here where you can find local meat, eggs and produce as well as baked goods, prepared foods and handmade arts and crafts on those snowy Saturday mornings.

EAT LIKE A LOCAL

Missoula is brimming with delicious, local food, whether you’re looking for 5-star dining or food truck fare on-the-go. And when we say local, we really mean it – countless restaurants in Missoula pride themselves on sourcing their ingredients from local farmers and ranchers.

FIRST FRIDAY

This year-round art walk has Missoulians strolling downtown streets the first Friday of every month as galleries and shops open their doors for art viewing, artists meet and greets along with local food, drinks and music.

SURF THE RIVER

River surfers and kayakers ride and play at Missoula’s man-made Brennan’s Wave near Caras Park. Rent a board or boat from a local gear shop, to join the spectacle or watch the action from the newly renovated—and ADA accessible—Caras Park river access.

SKI AND BIKE THE BOWL

In Missoula’s backyard, Montana Snowbowl ski area combines deep powder and diverse runs with some of the best wood-fired pizza and bloody marys in the region. And in summer, Snowbowl offers chairlift rides for mountain bikers to cruise down the mountain as well as zip line tours.

FLOAT THE RIVER

Missoula is a river town, and that is most apparent when the temperatures climb and hundreds head to the water, inner tubes in hand. Pack a cooler (rig it to your tube so you won’t lose it) and make a day of it. Just remember to respect the river—and other rivergoers—while you enjoy a float downstream, and don’t forget your lifejacket!

TO DO IN MISSOULA:

THE SÉLIŠ, QĪISPÉ AND KSANKA TRIBES OF THE FLATHEAD INDIAN RESERVATION

Long before European settlers arrived, various tribes, like the Séliš (Bitterroot Salish), Qlispé (Upper Pend d'Orielle/Kalispel) and Ksanka (Kootenai), called the Missoula area home. For thousands of years, Indigenous peoples relied on hunting and gathering to sustain their way of life. The valley served as a natural corridor through the mountains, with numerous tribes passing through on their way to and from the buffalo-rich eastern plains.

With the arrival of fur traders, trappers, missionaries and settlers in the 1800s, tribes faced immense pressure to abandon their territories and traditional ways of life. In 1891, after 36 years of resisting removal from their homelands, the Bitterroot Séliš people were forcibly removed from their ancestral lands and relocated to the Flathead Indian Reservation, sharing the area with the Ksanka and Qlispé tribes.

Montana is now home to seven Indian reservations and 12 recognized tribal nations. Two reservations are easily accessible from Missoula: the Flathead Reservation of the Séliš, Qlispé, and Ksanka people (which are known as the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes—the CSKT—but have adopted traditional spellings of their nations' names) and the Blackfeet Reservation of the Blackfeet Nation.

When visiting the region's tribal nations, supporting local artisans by purchasing authentic Indigenous arts and crafts not only preserves tradition, but also offers visitors something special to remember Montana by. It is a way to honor the deep connection to the land and its Indigenous peoples, ensuring their vibrant culture remains a vital part of Montana's identity for generations to come.

CULTURAL GATHERINGS AND EVENTS

In the region, Indigenous cultural heritage is deeply revered, with annual gatherings and celebrations like powwows offering glimpses into the rich traditions of Indigenous peoples through dress, art, music, dance and storytelling. The organizers of the following annual events welcome visitors to attend and respectfully observe their Indigenous cultural heritage.

THE GATHERING AT TMSMĪL: On the first weekend in May, Travelers' Rest State Park and its partners at the Séliš Qlispé Culture Committee celebrate Indigenous art and culture with education stations, food, vendors and more.

KYIYO POW WOW: This two-day cultural celebration featuring music, dance and art is held every April in Missoula. The Kyiyo Native American Student Association at the University of Montana hosts the event, which draws thousands of locals and visitors.

ANNUAL BITTERROOT FESTIVAL: Hosted in the Bitterroot Valley (toward Hamilton), this event centers around the Bitterroot—Montana's state flower. The day's festivities include traditional Salish drumming, dancing, regalia, food vendors and more.

ANNUAL ARLEE CELEBRATION: A Fourth of July powwow located in Arlee that celebrates tribal heritage, diversity, music and art, dating back to at least 1900.

ANNUAL STANDING ARROW CELEBRATION: A powwow located in Elmo on the west shore of Flathead Lake that celebrates tribal heritage. This event takes place on the third weekend of July every year and has been featured in National Geographic as a traditional Native American gathering.

INDIGENOUS PEOPLES' DAY CELEBRATION: On Indigenous Peoples' Day—the second Monday of October—the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes host the Beartracks Celebration Powwow in Missoula. The event celebrates the resiliency of the tribes who have historically called this area home with music, dance, crafts and food.

TRAVELERS' REST
CONNECTION

A VALLEY FULL OF HISTORY

Where the past flows into the present.

Did you know that this breathtaking valley used to be a vast glacial lake? Or that the name “Missoula” comes from the Séliš (Salish) place-name “Nmesulétkw,” which means “the place of freezing water”? That Missoula was a major stop on the Lewis and Clark expedition? Or that the first woman ever elected to the United States Congress, Jeannette Rankin, hailed from here?

Like the nearby rivers we adore, Missoula’s history has more tributaries than you can count. And the town proudly showcases its lively and diverse background through places devoted to history like Holt Heritage Museum and the Historical Museum at Fort Missoula. If you’re fascinated by the early days of aviation, take a trip to the Museum of Mountain Flying, where you’ll find vintage aircraft and so much more.

The city’s cultural past is vibrant and diverse, melding the stories and lives of people—pioneers, homesteaders, fur trappers, gold rushers and railroaders—who came from around the world to settle the valley that American Indians inhabited for millennia. Missoula’s past truly does run deep, and its roots are grounded in the lives of the men and women who shaped, and were in turn shaped, by this landscape.

LEWIS AND CLARK EXPEDITION

Much of the landscape near Missoula that Lewis and Clark crossed remains unchanged. Montana’s rivers and highways flow past scores of landmarks touched by the expedition. In 1806, Captain Lewis traveled through the Missoula Valley. Near Missoula, Lewis and Clark camped at present day Lolo in an area called Travelers’ Rest. It’s the only place they camped twice and one of two sites in the country with physical evidence of their journey. They wrote about Lolo Hot Springs and the trek across the Bitterroot Mountains along the Lolo Trail.

SETTLING MISSOULA

The Hellgate Village Trading Post was established in 1860 by Christopher P. Higgins (where downtown Missoula’s “main drag” gets its name) and Frank Worden. By 1866, the settlement had moved east, five miles upstream, and was renamed Missoula Mills, later shortened to Missoula.

FORT MISSOULA

Western Montana’s rich history is brought to life on Fort Missoula’s 32 acres, with over 20 well-preserved historic structures. Established in 1877 during the Indian Wars, this once-major military post also served as the starting point for the African American 25th Infantry Bicycle Corps’ 1,900-mile ride to St. Louis, Missouri; a WWI military training center; a 1933 Civilian Conservation Corps headquarters; and a WWII internment camp housing 2,200 Italian and Japanese nationals. Rotating exhibits at the Historical Museum at Fort Missoula explore a range of thought-provoking historical topics, and the Rocky Mountain Museum of Military History covers U.S. military history with an emphasis on the U.S. Army during the interwar period from 1921 to 1941.

NATIONAL CONSERVATION LEGACY CENTER

In summer 2026, a new national destination will open in Missoula. The National Conservation Legacy Center—the flagship project of the National Museum of Forest Service History—will showcase a world-class facility and exhibition focused on our country's conservation history.

The Conservation Legacy Center is the only museum of its kind, and will serve as a learning center for audiences of all ages to explore a wide world of conservation stories and heroes. The interactive and participatory exhibits will inspire visitors as they are drawn into and explore the many facets of conservation history, with key stories, figures and immersive experiences about conservation's impact.

The building is also an exhibit in and of itself. A beautiful showcase of innovative wood products, the Center features mass timber and wooden tree columns from species around the country. Built from wood and grounded in history, the Center will stand as a bold reminder that conservation connects us all. Learn more at FORESTSERVICEMUSEUM.ORG.

GLACIAL LAKE MISSOULA

Glacial Lake Missoula was a massive prehistoric lake in Western Montana, created as a result of ice sheets blocking the Clark Fork River near today's Lake Pend Oreille in Idaho. Named after the city of Missoula, you can still spy its old shorelines high on nearby mountains. Around 13,000 to 15,000 years ago, as the lake filled and emptied, it shaped landscapes across Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Evidence of the lake and catastrophic flooding offered by geologists J.T. Pardee in 1910 and J. Harlen Bretz in 1923 initially were met with opposition. However, acceptance grew with extensive fieldwork in the 1940s, aerial photos in the 1950s and satellite images in the 1970s. Bretz was later honored with geology's top prize, the Penrose Medal, confirming his groundbreaking theories. Visit the Glacial Lake Missoula exhibit at the Montana Natural History Center to learn more about how the lake shaped landscapes from here to the Pacific Ocean.

GARDEN CITY BALLET. NEIL CHAPUT

With a setting as awe-inspiring as ours, a thriving cultural scene is inevitable.

Missoula is the hub for all things arts and culture throughout the region. With a music scene that's showcasing local and world-class talent on the regular, one of the most expansive art collections in the state and a rich film history with ties that run deep, Missoula is so much more than its mountains.

The breathtaking natural beauty is only half of what makes this place so special. Missoula's cultural scene is weird and funky in all the best ways, and we love every bit of it.

This city is turning into a gathering place, where people from all over can come together to enjoy cultural celebrations in all forms. ART AROUND EVERY CORNER

Missoula's public art scene is flourishing, and everything is fair game. From over 50 traffic signal boxes dripping in colorful artwork to vibrant murals—new additions can be spotted outside Worden's Market and in The Wren Hotel—you'll meet a testament to the city's love of art around each corner.

Creativity is especially encouraged in Missoula's outdoor spaces, where culture, community and nature interweave. The Missoula Art Museum's Art Park features large-scale outdoor exhibits, and Silver Park is home to Sculpture Missoula, where several sculptures are on display as you walk through the park's outdoor space. The alleyway outside of Radius Gallery has been transformed into a rotating outdoor urban mural space known as Allez! Missoula. DOWNTOWN RIVERSIDE ART WALLS

Autumn 2025 brought a new addition to the Missoula public art scene. Large murals celebrating Indigenous art and culture were installed on the walls of the downtown NorthWestern Energy substation. The 4,000 square foot piece features a variety of mediums including poetry, traditional artwork and ledger art—a style of Native American art depicted on account books—honoring the tribes who have inhabited this valley for centuries.

With the talents of eleven Indigenous language and visual artists—Frank Finely, Debra Magpie Earling, Vic Charlo, April Charlo, Aspen Decker, John Isaiah Pepion, David Dragonfly, Terrance Guardipee, Rachel Twoteeth-Pichardo, Monica Gilles-BringsYellow and more—each work reflects the artists' individuality while honoring their own cultures.

"This Indigenous mural installation will be visible to everyone walking along the Clark Fork River, wandering the Saturday morning market or enjoying East Caras and Bess Reed Parks; allowing them the opportunity to appreciate the amazing artwork and to learn more about the original stewards of this amazing place," says Karen Sippy, the Downtown Riverside Art Walls project manager.

Community members from Destination Missoula and TBID, Downtown Business Improvement District Board, North Riverside Parks and Trails Implementation, owners of Radius Gallery and Clayworks, Poteet Construction and others collaborated to help bring this vision to life.

Additional interpretive signage will allow viewers to learn more about the art, and its significance to the region's Indigenous populations.

SPORTS SPIRIT

You can hear the roar all over town. But it's no bear—well, not exactly. It's the sound of thousands of fans in the Washington-Grizzly Stadium cheering on their Montana Grizzlies. Decked out in maroon and silver, Griz fans are some of the loudest and most loyal college fans you'll meet. Everyone is a Griz fan in Missoula.

When they're not screaming themselves hoarse for the Griz, they cheer for the Missoula PaddleHeads baseball team. The PaddleHead's home base is at Ogren Park at Allegiance Field on the Clark Fork River, and nothing feels more like summer than sitting in this beautiful setting while listening to the crack of a bat making contact with a ball.

For those fans of sports that are a little more unique, you can cheer on the Missoula Curling Club, the Hellgate Roller Derby or the Griz Hockey Team.

During games, Washington-Grizzly Stadium becomes Montana's sixth largest town, with around 26,000 fans cheering for the University of Montana Grizzlies.

MISSOULA PARKS AND RECREATION

FORT MISSOULA REGIONAL PARK

In a place where the outfield is endless, it's no surprise Missoula is a draw for regional sports tournaments. The city's state-of-the-art Fort Missoula Regional Park boasts seven softball diamonds, 11 multipurpose fields, a dog park and 156 acres of recreation space. The landscape and architecture offer a nod to the area's past, complete with interpretive trails that tell its story, an all-inclusive playground, sports fields and courts—all modern and top-of-the-line. The facilities are perfect for tournament play, but also offer space for lawn games like croquet and bocce ball. The entire park is accessible by bike via the South Reserve Street pedestrian bridge, which connects with the community's other pathways. So even if you're just headed to the park to spectate, there's no excuse to not get in a workout—or at least try your hand at a couple rounds of bocce ball.

MISSOULA MARATHON

How a community crosses the finish line.

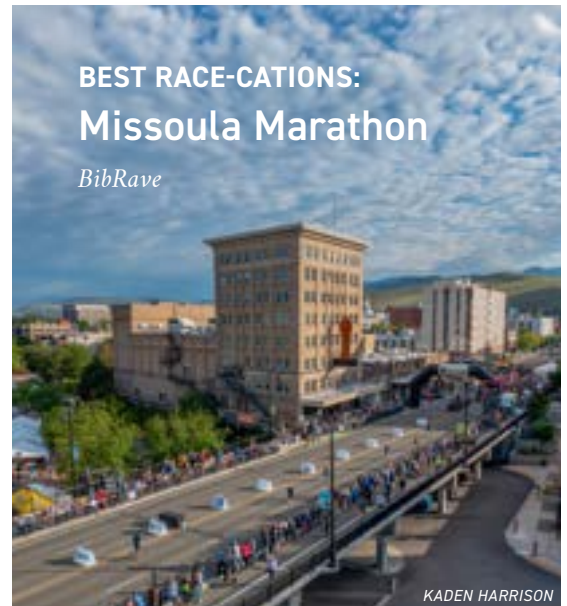

Each June, thousands flock to Missoula to run the Missoula Marathon, a race that is steeped in a love for its community. This past year, more than 7,500 runners from 50 states and eight countries hit the pavement during marathon weekend.

This is a special race. Not only is the course flat and fast, it's also surrounded by breathtaking scenery as runners breeze over rivers and through the valley. From "Top 10 Races for Breathtaking On-Course Scenery," to "Top 5 Race-cations in the US," this is a race that is beloved by visitors and locals alike.

The marathon organizer —Run Wild Missoula—has been hosting group runs and races since the late '80s. Running in Missoula quickly became the best way to connect with people, while taking advantage of easier terrain and beautiful views. And thus, the marathon was born in 2007, paying homage to the culture that is so deeply intertwined with Missoula.

More than 600 volunteers hit the course before sunrise to support the runners, but they aren't the only locals who are showing out, spectators line the route to bring the energy to the runners who so desperately need a boost. The strong community presence is what keeps racers pushing towards that finish line.

This race is consistently ranked among the best and most beautiful races in the country. But it's not the accolades that keep racers running this route every year. The culture of the race—and Missoula itself—is enough to keep them coming back again and again. Learn more at MISSOULAMARATHON.ORG. See ad on page 35.

MUSIC & NIGHTLIFE

The sounds of Shania Twain, Hozier, Kacey Musgraves, Brad Paisley, Jason Isbell and the 400 Unit, Zach Top, Caamp and other famous musicians swell into the streets and rise up to the mountains on any given night. Music pulses through Missoula. You'll find local bands trying to make it big and bona fide rock stars on Missoula's stages. It's no wonder Missoula's music scene is considered the best in Montana and is gaining notoriety throughout the West.

Missoula is undeniably a music town. You can find live music any day of the week, and sometimes the biggest challenge is just picking which shows you want to see and which venues you want to hit first. Lineups include internationally known performers—think Elton John, the Rolling Stones and Guns N' Roses—along with up-and-coming artists, indie favorites with cult followings and local bands making their mark on the music scene. No matter the season you're visiting or the genre you're searching for, Missoula is bound to have a live show in the lineup.

Stay up-to-date with the latest musical happenings in Missoula by visiting MISSOULA.LIVE.

THERE'S NEVER A BAD SEAT IN THE HOUSE

The Wilma, a renovated historic theater, is known for having one of the best sound systems in the Northwest. Local indie artists enjoy more intimate settings, such as the ZACC Showroom, The Top Hat and Longstaff House. Big-name bands play for arena-sized crowds at the Washington-Grizzly Stadium and the Adams Center. Festivals throughout the summer, like the River City Roots Festival, bring in bands to perform on downtown stages.

Two outdoor amphitheaters combine some of Missoula's favorite things: the outdoors, live music and local beer. The Big Sky Brewing Company Amphitheater features a world-class stage set against Montana's big sky, and the KettleHouse Amphitheater is situated on the banks of the Blackfoot River. There's no better place to jam out than outside on a Montana summer evening. If you're looking for a venue that's a little more Missoula, Free Cycles shows feature local talent in a unique indoor-outdoor setting.

ZOOTOWN FESTIVAL: MUSIC AND MORE IN MISSOULA

This June, adventure gets an unforgettable soundtrack.

Great tunes and unforgettable experiences met in Missoula with the inaugural Zootown Festival this past July. The festival was a rousing success, and brought a weekend full of music to our corner of Montana. Zootown Festival is returning in 2026 on June 19-20, with a highly anticipated lineup featuring the musical stylings of The Lumineers, The Chicks, Rainbow Kitten Surprise, Tedeschi Trucks Band and more.

Zootown isn't just about the music, it's also a celebration of the festival's host city. There's plenty of fun to be had inside the festival gates, but when you're not jamming out to your favorite artists, there's so much more to explore in Missoula. This year, attendees will enjoy special offers from local breweries, restaurants and other vendors, and through the festival's partnership with GuideTime, attendees will be able to purchase half-day and full-day recreational excursions on the days before and after the festival (and morning activities on show days) to experience the unmatched natural beauty of our mountains and rivers, and fully embrace everything a Missoula summer has to offer. "I believe there are only a few truly iconic destinations in the U.S. ideal for hosting a festival of this caliber," shares festival partner and promoter Scott Osburn, "and to me, Missoula sits at the top of that list. Our goal is for the local and regional community to feel a deep sense of pride and ownership in this event, while giving visitors the chance to discover the unique spirit of Missoula, Montana." Missoula's newest summertime tradition is one we're looking forward to celebrating for many years to come.

RELAX AND RESET IN MISSOULA

The perfect getaway for wellness-focused travelers.

Recharge and reconnect with the things you love in Missoula, where wellness is ingrained in the way we live, work, play, eat and explore. We nourish ourselves, body and soul, by supporting local farmers, ranchers, bakers and creators at every meal. We stretch our legs every chance we get, whether that means a quick walk along the river or a full day hitting the trails on foot, bike or even horseback. When it comes to relaxation, there's something to soothe your stress around every corner—spas, spin classes, stand-up paddleboard yoga, sensory deprivation float tanks, you name it.

At the end of the day, a getaway to Missoula should never leave you feeling drained or in need of a "detox"—quite the opposite, in fact. Missoula is the detox, and wellness is part of our culture.

A RIVER RUNS THROUGH IT

There's a famously good reason that locals go surfing on their lunch hour. It's the same reason that experts and newcomers go fly-fishing side by side in the middle of downtown and that freestyle kayaking competitions are hosted here. The Clark Fork River runs right through town. Just about everybody spends time on, in and around the river. Why not star in your own movie? We'll provide the iconic setting, the authentic extras, suitable gear and experienced guides. We'll even throw in a picnic lunch. From high-adrenaline whitewater to a relaxing float with a backdrop of ponderosa pines, mountain shorelines and bald eagles, come have a blast and splash around with us.

With a variety of rafting expeditions tailored to your needs and preferences, it's an adventure made for you.

RIVERWISE RECREATION: DIVE INTO THE FUN RESPONSIBLY

Missoula boasts three pristine rivers—Clark Fork, Blackfoot and Bitterroot—making it an outdoor haven. As river enthusiasts and recreators, it is up to us to preserve the health and vitality of these waters. Follow these tips for a seamless (and responsible!) river adventure:

1. PACK IN, PACK OUT: Check weather and terrain, have a backup plan, and arrive early to avoid congestion at access points. Leave glass at home, pick up trash, use designated restrooms and respect private property. Let's do our part to leave the river better than we found it.

2. TREAD LIGHTLY: Opt for eco-friendly transport like the UM River Shuttle, zero-fare Mountain Line or carpooling.

3. PROTECT THE FLOW : Be updated on alerts like the Hoot Owl Fishing Restriction, which outlines hours to fish during hot stretches in order to protect species and habitats. Visit FWP.MT.GOV for more info.

PRO TIP: Keep an eye out for Missoula's River Ambassadors. They're like river sidekicks, decked out in bright shirts at access points, parking areas and even on stand-up paddleboards and kayaks. They've got all the insider info on parking, riverbank care, safety and more.

If you plan to recreate on any state lands and rivers, anyone over the age of 12 requires a conservation license in order to access them. Find more information at FWP.MT.GOV.

HIT THE TRAIL

Welcome to 360 degrees of awesome via Missoula's astonishingly vast network of hiking and biking trails. You can pace yourself according to elevation gain and distance and there are trailheads almost everywhere: along the riverfront or at the base of any mountain or foothill. You'll be rewarded with views of snow-capped peaks, the shape of the river as it carves through downtown, profusions of wildflowers and likely even a few deer. Take your pick from switchbacks galore as well as trails hugging the edges of hillsides.

Catch the sunrise from one of Missoula's many peaks and watch the valley take its morning bath in mesmerizing early light. The birdsongs and dew-drenched grasses make it all worthwhile. You can bookend your day with a breathtaking portrait of the sunset from yet another mountaintop, giving new meaning to the phrase "paint the town." If you'd rather not navigate it solo, there are a number of skilled outfitters nearby who would be happy to lead the way. By foot or on wheels, Missoula has a path with your name on it. Many, actually.

Missoula is a prime location for trail running, with several trail races taking place here throughout the year for both amateurs and professionals. Runners flock from all over to compete in these races that take place in this unmatched setting. If you're looking for your next race destination, Missoula is the perfect spot to celebrate after crossing the finish line, with post-run celebrations that last all weekend long.

NORDIC ADVENTURES AND WINTER TREKS

In and around Missoula's city limits, cross-country skiing and snowshoeing provide a fun and fresh way to get outside and enjoy the beauty of a Missoula winter. Several places in town provide affordable rentals, and trails range from quick loops through town, to scenic treks through the snow-covered forest.

LOLO PASS has some of the most reliable snow in the region, offering eight miles of groomed trails for skate and classic skiing and a significant network of groomed multi-use trails.

LOOKOUT PASS SKI TRAILS are known for generous snowfall and are located next to and part of the snowmobile trail system. There are nine ungroomed trails that total 7.3 miles of cross-county exploration.

LUBRECHT FOREST maintains more than 12 miles of dog-friendly ski trails, and you can make it an overnight excursion with a Lubrecht cabin or lodge rental.

PATTEE CANYON RECREATION AREA is set in a beautiful, lush wooded canyon near Missoula and offers a mix of flat and hilly groomed skate and classic trails.

RATTLESNAKE NATIONAL RECREATION AREA offers 61,000 acres of stunning, glaciated terrain in some of Montana's premier urban wilderness, blending the best of both wilderness and civilization. The main Rattlesnake and side drainages are readily accessible to cross-country skiers.

SEELEY CREEK NORDIC SKI TRAILS are a series of linked groomed ski trails in one of Montana's most-desired recreation areas. Skiers can take their pick of a short, medium or long route.

UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA GOLF COURSE is in the heart of Missoula's University District, and as the snow covers the green, offers two nordic skiing loops for those wanting to get outside without trekking too far. The west loop is dog-friendly, so make sure to bring your furry friends along for the ride.

A SNOWMOBILER'S PARADISE

Hit the trails and get lost in the wilds of winter. A couple hours' drive brings you to any one of several snow-packed areas that appear as if they were made just for powering up and plowing through the powder.

LOLO PASS offers 250 miles of groomed, connecting trails and a series of interconnecting loop trails straddling two national forests on the Montana-Idaho border. Head deep into the heart of the Bitterroot Range, with lots of meadows and areas to stop and play along the way.

SEELEY LAKE—tucked between the Mission Mountains and the Swan Range—is one of western Montana's most popular year-round recreation areas. From town, snowmobilers can explore over 230 miles of groomed trails in nearly every direction to scenic lookouts, cozy lodges, cafés and backcountry lakes.

GARNET boasts a 116-mile trail system for snowmobilers and skiers, complete with spectacular views of the Blackfoot Valley, the Mission Mountains, the Bob Marshall Wilderness, and the Pintler Range. The 31.5-mile Garnet National Winter Recreation Trail takes snowmobilers and skiers into the heart of the ghost town and the surrounding area.

HAUGAN offers snowmobiling opportunities for all abilities, combining vast riding possibilities with a family-friendly atmosphere. Trails begin right off I-90. You'll see friendly faces at trailside stops with designated trails, open meadows and scenic views.

MISSION MOUNTAIN trails offer up-close exploration of this picturesque range. Because the trails are on the Flathead Indian Reservation, snowmobilers need special recreation permits widely available at gas stations and convenience stores on the reservation.

SAVOR THE LOCAL FLAVOR

An amazing food scene is part of the charm.

A heads up for foodies visiting Missoula: You're in for some truly delectable and diverse dining when you come to town. And it's no wonder—the creative minds in Missoula's kitchens have serious skills and a passion for creating dishes worth writing home about (and easy access to an abundance of local, fresh ingredients doesn't hurt either). No matter what you're craving, there's a handcrafted dining experience to tempt you for any meal of the day. From ultra-friendly breakfast joints (The Breakfast Club, The Trough) and one-of-a-kind food trucks (Gary's Local, Aikos, Clove Cart Pizza, or Garden City Taqueria) to take-out Brazilian combos (Five on Black) and counter-style East Indian (Masala) to classy elegance (The Keep) and happy hour heaven (please run, do not walk, to Plonk—you can thank us later), you'll find an array of cuisines to please any palate. The only hard part about eating in Missoula? The challenge of choosing where to have your next meal! Here's one mouthwatering master plan: Start the day with a fresh brew and light breakfast from Clyde Coffee, where they roast their own beans

FOOD TRUCKS

Missoula's food truck scene is one to savor. These unique vehicular vendors can be found truckin' around Missoula all year long, serving up food that is as diverse as the city itself. You'll also find food trucks seasonally at festivals and events like the Clark Fork River Market, Downtown ToNight and Out to Lunch in Caras Park. Visit Missoula's own Garden City Taqueria for a mean burrito, and mix things up with Zeera or Big Thai Country—as far as we're concerned, you can never have enough food truck fare. From BBQ, bison tacos and Big Dipper ice cream to tamales, Thai and teriyaki, the food truck culture in Missoula is one of dedication and borderline obsession. Mini doughnuts? There's a truck for that too.

Read about Missoula's many food trucks and locate one today at DESTINATIONMISSOULA.ORG/FOOD-TRUCKS or FACEBOOK.COM/FOODTRUCKLOCATOR.MISSOULA.

EAT AROUND THE WORLD WITHOUT EVER LEAVING MISSOULA

Missoula's food scene is thriving, from James Beard award nominees taking residency in downtown hotspots, to local mainstays serving up dishes that feel like home. Among the ever-growing number of restaurants, coffee shops and food trucks that cover the city, more than 20 different nationalities are represented. These spots are treasured among locals, and the unique cuisine draws foodies from all over. A culinary landscape as diverse as ours is rare for this part of the country, with menus often centering around our exceptional Montana beef. Our international chefs offer a beautiful cultural melange, with Montana ingredients intertwining with traditional recipes, one complimenting the other.

In downtown alone, brick-and-mortar restaurants featuring Thai, Mexican, Japanese and French cuisines can be found, with Saketome, Masala and Brasserie Porte Rouge getting plenty of love from locals. Just down the street, hometown favorite Ciao Mambo serves up delicious Italian cuisine to satisfy every taste. Most outdoor events around here offer a fleet of locally-owned food trucks ready to serve hungry crowds, and among them, you'll find unique selections from Madeline's Mediterranean, Puma Peruvian Cuisine and Kamoon Arabian Cuisine, weekly staples that draw crowds when they circle up in Caras Park. Weekend farmers markets showcase stands where the Greek Kiosk and Ibn Al-Sham—a Syrian bakery—share delicious treats that bring us back each Saturday throughout the summer.

While the quality of our beef is unmatched, Montana is so much more than just steaks and burgers. If you're hoping to expand your culinary and cultural palette, the world is at your fingertips in Missoula.

DRINK UP, YOU'RE IN MISSOULA

Raise your glass.

From signature cocktails and local craft brews to an enticing selection of wine, expertly distilled spirits, and locally roasted coffee, there's plenty to drink in Missoula, no matter the occasion. Brewed-to-perfection espresso; masterbrew craft beers from traditional to cutting-edge; must-try distilled liquors; and ciders pressed from local apples. You'll discover that Missoula is equally good at wildlife and nightlife. Check out some historic watering holes for old-school dive-bar lovers, like Charlie B's, The Missoula Club, Stockman's Bar and The Oxford. Breweries in Missoula are landmark venues and family-friendly to boot. Plus, there's the sleek-yet-welcoming Montgomery Distillery, acclaimed for the "best gin in the world." There's the Top Hat (with its triple-arch Brunswick backbar) and The Dram Shop (with its everchanging and supremely astonishing variety). Hoping to hold the alcohol? We've got you. Locally brewed kombucha is not in short supply around here, with deliciously tart flavors on tap at most of your favorite spots. And we're always mixing something up, with no shortage of craft mocktails and cocktails featuring locally-sourced ingredients to whet your appetite.

A BREWFEST FOR EVERY SEASON

Here in Missoula, we're pretty proud of our water, but there's only one thing that rivals our rivers in terms of flow, and that's definitely our beer. We take beer seriously, and we also take any opportunity to get outside and drink it, rain or shine. This means a brewfest (or two!) every season to celebrate Missoula, its people and of course, its beer. A Missoula Brewfest takes place in Caras Park and showcases more than 20 Montana-made beers for festival-goers to sample, featuring some local food trucks and live music to really make it a party. Here's your comprehensive guide to one of our favorite downtown get-togethers, and the ways you can attend throughout the year:

WINTER BREWFEST (FEBRUARY)

The bears may be hibernating, but we don't have to! This is always a well deserved excuse to bundle up and get outside in the midst of a long winter. The best part? You'd be hard-pressed to find a warm beer around here.

GARDEN CITY BREWFEST (MAY)

The Brewfest to end all Brewfests! With temps starting to warm up, this event always signals the start of summer and the entire town takes advantage.

BACKCOUNTRY BREWFEST (JUNE)

Everything you love about a Brewfest, while supporting Backcountry Hunters and Anglers, and their mission to protect public lands.

FALL RENDEZVOUS BREFEST (SEPTEMBER)

Hosted by the Montana Brewers Association, it's the state's best beers, all in one place!

Downtown offers a variety of local boutiques, one-of-a-kind restaurants and unique experiences you'll only find in Missoula. As you wander, stay alert for inspiring historic architectural details and vibrant murals in tucked-away alleys. Boutique windows and café bulletin boards remind you to save room in your schedule for live music, theater and pop-up poetry. Don't forget to re-fuel while you shop! From snacking to dining, there's plenty to munch on. Find chic fashion alongside fun souvenirs and elegant and eclectic jewelry to pair with comfortable footwear. You'll also find several fine art galleries generously dotted throughout the heart of downtown.

Cross Beartracks Bridge and discover Missoula's "Hip Strip," a little stretch of local businesses with big personalities. Here, you'll find effortlessly cool clothing, shoes and accessories, creatively upcycled goods and artwork, statement-making vintage treasures and globally conscious, fair-trade gifts. After shopping, kick back with a sensory deprivation float or some tasty bites—all awaiting on the Hip Strip.

SOUTHGATE MALL AND MIDTOWN

Southgate Mall has been going through an extensive upgrade. This isn't just a remodel—it's a full-scale transformation that includes a dine-in movie theater and an even wider selection of brand names, like new additions Hobby Lobby and Texas Roadhouse, along with unique stores, like the Last Best Store, which was named 2023 Retailer of the Year in Montana by the Made in Montana Program. Southgate Mall hosts special events all year long and includes dining options every member of the family will enjoy. Indulge in elevated Asian fusion cuisine at The Mustard Seed, or stop for a quick pretzel or cinnamon roll bite before hitting the next shop.

Head north on Brooks Street and you'll find even more shopping and dining in Trempers Shopping Center and the neighboring Kent Plaza. Missoula staples call this part of town home, where the well-loved Book Exchange is stocked with new and used copies of all of your favorite reads. Just next door is local favorite, Paul's Pancake Parlor. This cozy hometown spot is the place to be on a Saturday morning. Across the parking lot is Oddpitch Brewing, one of Missoula's many stellar spots to grab a brew. Make sure to stop by every Sunday to catch their pinball tournament.

SOUTHGATE MALL. ANNA SMIDT

RESERVE STREET

Stretching for several miles along the west side of Missoula, North Reserve Street is where you'll find familiar stores like Target, Old Navy, REI and TJ Maxx. Remember, there's no shame in buying an extra suitcase to take home all the good stuff you find. And since you really shouldn't shop on an empty stomach, there are plenty of places to snack on local specialty foods as well as classic and familiar dining spots.

National retailers are gathered in this user-friendly shopping area of Missoula, where Brooks Street meets South Reserve Street. Men's Wearhouse, Kohl's and Boot Barn are here, and so is Bass Pro Shops—an outfitter's dream, boasting 42,000 square feet of excursion gear. A variety of restaurants in the area will whet your appetite and help to fuel your tax-free shopping spree.

INDIGENOUS MADE MONTANA

In Missoula—the homeland of the Séliš, Q̓lispé and Ksanka people—something special is happening. Meet Indigenous Made Montana, a trailblazing social enterprise that uplifts and supports Indigenous creativity and heritage. Founded by Latisha Buck Elk Thunder and Dacia Red Thunder Griego, this women-owned-and-led organization established an inclusive space for Indigenous artists and makers to shine a light on their work.

Indigenous businesses have long grappled with barriers to representation and success, but Indigenous Made Montana is rewriting the script. By fostering strong community ties, leading open-air marketplace events and hosting curated shops, the organization is able to connect Indigenous-owned businesses and entrepreneurs to a broader audience, generating new economic opportunities and relationships.

The monthly marketplace events hosted by Indigenous Made Montana are full of stunning craftwork, lively conversations and talented young creators. These gatherings are a warm invitation for all to connect, learn and honor Indigenous art and heritage—but it's more than that.

The overarching message of Indigenous Made Montana is at the heart of these gatherings: “Supporting Indigenous artists is not only an act of appreciation for their craftsmanship but also a means of contributing to the economic growth and self-determination of Indigenous communities. By acquiring handcrafted artwork, you are directly supporting artists and their families, encouraging cultural preservation, and fostering sustainable development.”

Indigenous Made Montana is doing more than providing a space to promote and sell Indigenous art; it's weaving a narrative of empowerment, unity and shared cultural appreciation in the heart of Montana. Learn more at INDIGENOUSMADEMONTANA.COM.

UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA

At the University of Montana, classrooms are just a bit different.

At UM, students spend their days performing field research at the school's 26,000-acre experimental forest, and their nights cheering at the top of their lungs for the Griz. Pride for this school runs so much deeper than the four years spent on campus, and extends far beyond the little corner of Missoula this institution occupies. Whether you're an alumni or just a Missoula resident, the spirit of the Griz is palpable throughout the community all year long (but maybe a little more during football season). UM is Missoula.

Students are active members of the community, showing support for local events with fresh perspectives and ideas, and it's not uncommon to hike to the "M," do some fly-fishing or run a kayak through Brennan's Wave between classes. Missoula residents do their part to show their Grizzly pride, and are no stranger to a pre-game pep rally, an afternoon lining the streets of downtown for the Homecoming Day parade, or an evening exhibition at the Montana Museum of Arts and Culture.

What weaves all this together is a commitment to the student's unique path, and to keeping their success and individual journey at the center of everything.

UM's College of Business is ranked as best in the Big Sky Conference, the Wildlife Biology Program is recognized as one of the best in North America, the ecology and atmospheric sciences rank among the top 100 in the world and professional programs in pharmacy and physical therapy are nationally renowned. From journalism to the arts, and computer science to creative writing, UM provides a world-class education in a truly extraordinary setting.

In addition, the Missoula College unit of UM provides two-year occupational and technical education covering 40 programs in areas including nursing, business and industrial technology.

Missoula fosters UM, and students give the energy right back to the community. What's made here in Montana is remaking the world.

MAKING HISTORY AND HONORING MONTANA'S TRIBES

Not only is the Payne Family Native American Center the first off-reservation building in the state of Montana designed to feature each of Montana's 12 federally recognized tribes, it's also the first facility in the U.S. built for a Department of Native American Studies (NAS) and American Indian Student Services (AISS).

Using Native American architectural influences and taking Montana's climate into account, the building's energy consumption is 42 percent more efficient than standard buildings of its size. With impressive views to outside, along with the native plants around the building, it's no wonder it's one of the most notable (and beloved) buildings on campus. Oh, and did we mention it houses a planetarium?

The Payne Center looks over the Campus Oval, which was once the site of a historic Salish Indian encampment. The building was designed to highlight the heritage and culture of Montana's tribes and to provide a space for students, faculty and visitors to reflect on Montana's past, present and future. 5 TIPS FOR RELOCATING TO MISSOULA

LOVE WHERE YOU LIVE

Missoula is a mélange of unique neighborhoods, all offering something special to those who call this place home. Live in the historic University District with the buzz of lively activity from the University of Montana, or find a little land out of town a bit where there's room to roam. Find the place in Missoula that's right for you — it's important to live in an area that will complement your lifestyle.

GET SCHOOLED

The school system in Missoula is exceptional, and offers a variety of excellent options — both public and private. There's somewhere for every student. The Missoula County Public School system offers nine elementary schools, three middle schools and three high schools. You'll also find independent school districts in Missoula County, including Target Range and Hellgate, which serve students K – 8. In addition, there are a variety of private schools in the area that serve children from preschool through high school. It's important to visit schools and meet with teachers and administrators to find the environment in which your child will best thrive.

BE INVOLVED

Missoula is an extremely interactive community. There are plenty of groups, nonprofits and organizations that you can belong to, participate in and actively be a part of. Take some time to review the options and pick one (or more) that you're passionate about. Not only is this a great way to give back to the community, but it's also an effective way to network, meet people and make friends.

ENJOY THE GREAT OUTDOORS

Western Montana is a haven for outdoor lovers. Boating, hiking, skiing, fishing, horseback riding, hunting, to name only a handful, are all just minutes from Missoula. One of the most desirable things about living here is the ability to enjoy these outdoor activities — it's one of the top reasons why we love where we live.

Opportunities abound for blue-ribbon trout fishing, visiting the Flathead Indian Reservation, paddling on serene lakes and viewing wildlife like bison, antelope and elk. NATIONAL PARKS

Make Missoula your basecamp for national park exploration.

A trip to Montana isn't complete without visiting Glacier and Yellowstone national parks. And, with both in driving distance of Missoula, you're in luck.

WHAT'S YOUR FAVORITE THING ABOUT MISSOULA?

"I love Missoula's location. You're only a few hours away from amazing national parks. And all the hikes lead to breathtaking views." Destanie

📍 MOUNTAIN GOAT, HIDDEN LAKE

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK 136 miles north of Missoula

This awe-inspiring land is sky high with natural wonders. Drive the 50-mile Going-to-the-Sun Road and pass mountain goats and songbirds enjoying wildflower-filled meadows, marvel at 400-foot waterfalls and witness ancient glaciers. With so much to see, the park's red bus tours are convenient and fun for the whole family. If you're looking for a backcountry adventure, plan to visit North Fork, Two Medicine and Many Glacier. When you're filled with memories to last a lifetime, relax with the locals in one of the serene surrounding communities. Don't miss the famous Polebridge Mercantile, serving up fresh baked goods and authentic Montana charm. Visit the Museum of the Plains Indian in Browning to see the diverse art collection from tribal people of the Northern Plains including the Blackfeet, Crow, Northern Cheyenne, Sioux, Assiniboine, Arapaho, Shoshone, Nez Perce, Flathead, Chippewa and Cree.

Several communities near Glacier National Park are also worth a visit. Kalispell is home to the Conrad Mansion and the Hockaday Museum of Art. Visiting during the winter months? Check out Whitefish. Slip on your mittens before heading to the Whitefish Winter Carnival in early February. Festivities include the Penguin Plunge (participants jump into an ice hole in Whitefish Lake!), an old-fashioned parade and a torch-light ski parade followed by a fireworks show. Last but not least, don't forget to visit Columbia Falls, known as the gateway to Glacier National Park.

In 2021, Glacier National Park implemented a vehicle reservation system to limit vehicle traffic and lessen impact on its natural and cultural resources. Scan the code to learn more, and be sure to book your reservation early if you plan to experience the stunning Going-to-the-Sun Road.

TIPS FOR CHOOSING A NEW SCHOOL

When moving to a new town, one of the harder decisions to make is where to send your child to school. Talking to your real estate agent is one way to get a local perspective on quality of schools and school districts. Visiting with those you meet in restaurants or retail shops always brings a broad array of perspectives. However, you as the parent know your child best. You know their strengths, areas for growth, needs, and the learning environment that fits them best. So cater your questions and inquiries around this. Here are some questions to ask your real estate agent, your potential neighbors and the schools and school districts directly:

1. How big is the school? What is the student-teacher ratio?
2. What are the most noteworthy strengths of the school?
3. As a school, what are the identified areas of improvement you are working on?
4. What would my child's daily schedule look like in each grade?
5. What specialty classes, after-school activities, and athletic programs will my child have access to? What is the regularity of these offerings?
6. If my child is in need of any special services, such as speech, special education, counseling, etc., what services does the school offer?
7. What is a profile of your graduates (at any grade level that is applicable: 5th, 8th, 12th)? Where do most students move on to middle school, high school or college?
8. Where can I view the curriculum being taught at each grade level?
9. What does parent communication look like on a regular basis?
10. Is the school accredited?
11. How are parents involved in the school?
12. What local schools have the best reputations?
13. Can my child experience a "shadow day" at the school?

NEW SPOTS TO SAVOR

It feels like every time we turn around, a new eatery pops up and delights our community with mouthwatering treats. And local food is more than a movement here—it is a way of life. Experience the culinary magic of Missoula with these exciting new eateries, and be on the lookout for upcoming additions:

The beloved food truck hot-spot M-80 Chicken has traded in wheels for roots at their new brick-and-mortar location on Main Street. Le Petit Bakehouse recently reopened at their cozy new Hip Strip location, with the same breads and pastries you know and love. Campus favorite Calypso Sandwich Shop has added a second location on Front Street. Joining to the ever-growing roster of downtown favorites is The Local Berry—an açaí spot located inside The Wren hotel. Originally based out of Butte, 3B Bagel Company has recently added a Missoula location, serving up warm bagels and breakfast fare in the heart of Missoula. Double K Ranch opened up their general store on Higgins, offering prime Montana Beef, fine wines and cheeses and to-go sandwiches.

A Missoula staple—Rice Thai Cuisine—has also added a downtown location. Just off Broadway is Indikai, another food truck-turned-restaurant featuring asian-fusion street food. Keep heading east, and you'll discover Jay's One Stop, a true hidden gem that locals love. While the location may seem unassuming—operating out of a gas station—their Indian cuisine is legendary. Also in East Missoula is the new Granite Mill Coffee and Bakery, with a large patio to enjoy their homemade treats. Just a little further east, local chocolatier Posh Chocolat has opened their physical location in Bonner, serving up a brunch menu along with the artisan chocolates they're famous for. New to the west side of town is FSK, a neighborhood spot with a robust brunch program. Just north is Kampfire Steakhouse, perfecting what Montana does best—beef. Several local mainstays have received a new look this past year, with Bernice's Bakery and Bridge Pizza's Hip Strip location undergoing remodels.

MISSOULA HOSPITALITY

Thanks to Missoula's hopping hospitality scene, our out-of-town guests have a great selection of lodging options to choose from to get a restful night's sleep after a busy day, whether they're here for work or pleasure—or both! In the last year, more inviting places have opened to welcome visitors, with additional spots in the pipeline. Homewood Suites, a Hilton extended-stay property, is now providing spacious stays on Reserve. On Broadway, LOGE has opened in a tastefully and thoroughly renovated space—one that offers adventure-minded accommodations for guests and their gear (there's also a Gear Room of recreation equipment you can borrow). Accessible from two major thoroughfares—Reserve Street and West Broadway—LivAway Suites recently opened offering another option for extended stays in Missoula's business district.

NEW SHOPPING

Missoula continues to welcome new storefronts to the local shopping scene, with additions popping up all over town. For romance lovers, FMC books has recently found its home downtown, with all the dreamy reads your heart could desire. If you're eager to fill your home with some new life, Vine Plants and Design just opened up off of Southwest Higgins. They also have a featured pop-up at the Missoula Makers Collective. Just down the avenue, stop by Ditto Bottle Shop to find your new favorite bottle of wine, among other hosting necessities.

NEW DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENTS

Missoula recently unveiled its newest addition—the Caras Park ADA River Access. This allows the Clark Fork to be accessed by individuals of all abilities, featuring ramps down to the water's edge and spectator seating built into the natural scenery. More is in the works for downtown Missoula in the coming years, check out the full plan at MISSOULADOWNTOWN.COM/DOWNTOWN-MASTER-PLAN.

THE FINAL PHASE OF THE NEW MISSOULA MONTANA AIRPORT

In 2022, the Missoula Montana Airport completed an expansion, offering five gates with nonstop flights to 14 major U.S. cities and global connections. The terminal embodies Montana's essence, featuring local cuisine, fireplaces, an outdoor patio and cozy decor. The initial phase is complete. The ongoing second stage is reaching completion, with the second baggage claim carousel up and running, as well as the rental car center. New gates and in-terminal dining were added to complete the expansion.

The airport's expansion has also helped to accommodate travelers of all abilities. MSO was recently certified as a sensory inclusive facility by Kulture City, a certification that only four other U.S. airports carry.

To help pay homage to the vibrant community art scene, the airport's expansion features a stunning 45-foot-long installation by Destination Missoula, celebrating the many elements that make Missoula so special. The exhibit features captivating images and descriptions of iconic local landmarks, along with unique art pieces that reflect the spirit of the city. Travelers will see a vinyl-wrapped surfboard by artisan Courtney Blazon showcasing Missoula's four seasons, a meticulously crafted metal Cutthroat trout and Bitterroot flower by Paul Barmore of Big Sky Flies, a hand-painted guitar by Monica Gilles-BringsYellow honoring the Indigenous roots of the region and a beautifully carved carousel horse by John Thompson who graciously donated it.

To help travelers explore even more, the installation also includes a TV and two interactive iPads featuring information about Missoula and upcoming events. Prefer to talk to someone? Just pick up the phone on-site to be connected directly with our local call center and speak with a real person who's happy to help.

REASONS TO LOVE MISSOULA

THE PEOPLE: There's this place where people come together.

We're more than just a community. The city itself knits each and every person together, connecting and uniting us all under one big sky. Go get lost and then ask for directions, people-watch at Caras Park or grab a barstool next to a local and you'll see for yourself. The beauty here stretches far beyond what we see on the skyline. The people here help to make this place beautiful, and that's worth taking care of. There is a level of diversity, of open arms and of exploration that abounds within Missoulians.

THE ARTS: There's this place where creativity flows as fast and free as our rivers.

Artists have a soft spot for Missoula and it's no surprise why. The culture is utterly distinct, the lifestyle unequivocal to anywhere else and the heady combination of the then and the now, the young and the old, the tangible and that which is beyond reach makes way for a space that is constantly being reinvented and renewed. The city itself is pure art.

THE OUTDOORS: There's this place that's worth unplugging for.

Unparalleled outdoor beauty surrounds us. Sublime mountain ranges, a labyrinth of trails and an abundance of surging rivers are just the tip of the glacier, so to speak, and with nature as peaceful and serene as ours, you'll never want to see your phone again. We know a thing or two about embracing and preserving our town's nature-loving spirit. Missoulians never pass up the opportunity to get outside and play.

THE FOOD: There's this place that tastes as good as it looks.

A small town with big city flavor, Missoula's food scene is a feast for the senses. A strong culinary devotion permeates our community, resulting in an abundance of amazing eateries from all over the world. From lively festivals to downtown hotspots and late-night food trucks, the options are endless. With insatiable and diverse palates, both locals and visitors relish the tapestry of flavors that Missoula has to offer.

THE VIBE: There's this place that keeps it weird.

Missoula dances to its own rhythm, and boy, does it have a groove! With a tight-knit community that adores art, music, outdoor escapades and spur-of-the-moment fun, our captivating and diverse destination invites visitors to slip into the beat of mountain-town adventures.

A work of art by and for Missoula.

“Have you ever considered adding a custom map of Missoula to the Xplorer Maps collection?”

This simple question sparked a collaboration between Xplorer Maps and Destination Missoula that has resulted in both a work of art and a partnership that gives back to the community.

As it turned out, local Missoulian Greg Robitaille, Xplorer Maps owner and cofounder, had dreamed for years about that very thing. Destination Missoula, a local organization that promotes sustainable tourism and a vibrant, inclusive quality of life, place and experience for Missoula residents and visitors, was the Missoula-centric partner he'd needed to make the dream a reality.

Not only that, the map is an important fundraiser: Xplorer Maps and Destination Missoula have committed 10% of proceeds from the map product line for the next 10 years to the Destination Stewardship Plan (learn more on page 16), making our community a sustainable, inclusive and dynamic place to live and visit. Additionally, there are 100 signed and numbered limited-edition giclée map prints available in a 24-inch by 32-inch size, and 100% of all profits from these prints will go to the Missoula River Ambassador program.

The Clark Fork, Blackfoot, and Bitterroot Rivers are the lifelines of Missoula and offer endless opportunities to float, fish, paddle and connect with nature. As river use increased, the River Ambassador program was created to help the prosperity of the city's surrounding waterways. These stewards are easily accessible for rivergoers, and help to provide practical guidance on logistics like parking and float times, share tips for minimizing ecological impacts and communicate seasonal updates from partner agencies. They offer resources like trash bags, dog waste bags, patch kits and sunscreen, and share information on river conditions and wildlife sightings. Aiming to foster curiosity, stewardship and safety, the program emphasizes positive, proactive engagement rather than correction. The River Ambassadors work toward a shared community vision and a bright future for Missoula's rivers in which they remain healthy, resilient and safeguarded—today and for years to come. For more information on the program and how to get involved, visit riverambassadors.org
